NURSES, MIDWIVES & THE LAW

"It was absolutely brilliant, ideally every nurse should do this course, especially when we work within such a legally sensitive clinical environment"

Francis Cullen

R.G.N. (Postgrad Gerontology 2006/'07 NUI Galway)
St. Josephs District Hospital, Ballina, Co. Mayo

WHO AND WHY?

In the current litigious environment that Healthcare Professionals work in, it is important that Nurses and Midwives have a practical understanding of key legal issues, which may affect them in the course of their work. They need to understand their legal duty of care and how good record keeping comprises part of that duty. It also provides a practical understanding of other important legal issues that are relevant to Nurses and Midwives.

COURSE OUTLINE

This intensive and practical training is a one-day course aimed at addressing some of the most common legal issues, which arise for Nurses and Midwives, in their daily practice. The day includes analysis of the following issues; Accountability, Duty of Care, Good Record Keeping as part of that Duty of Care, Professional Negligence, Consent, Scope of Practice, and analyses key Irish legal cases where these issues have arisen. Practical exercises examine how these issues arise, in day-to-day situations.

KEY LEARNING POINTS

Delegates will

- Analyse their legal duty of care
 - Understand how good record keeping is part of that duty
 - Identify the function of their records
 - Learn the components of good record keeping
 - Identify the pitfalls in records
 - Look at what is required to be proved in a Negligence action
- Be aware of the constituents of a valid legal consent and how it should be recorded
 - Gain knowledge on how to assess their scope of practice and the legal implications of working outside of it
 - Look at the some Irish legal cases where these issues have arisen
